What is healthy voting?

Did you know that communities who vote at higher rates have better health? That's because voting is one way you exercise your voice on decisions that affect your health, and the health of your family and neighbors.

You have options for how you vote, depending on the rules in your state. Your state also sets deadlines for mail and early voting, as well as voting hours on Election Day.

This guide recommends some safe practices for protecting yourself from infectious diseases such as colds, flu, and coronavirus during the November 2022 general election.

Safe practices include: getting vaccinated and boosted, keeping physical distance, washing hands, and wearing a mask to protect yourself and others. Our guidance is based on advice from leading public health experts as well as the latest updates to state election law.

How voting in person works

Voting in person usually means going to a voting center where there will be other people. You sign in with an election official. You get a ballot. You go to a private place (a voting booth) to fill out your ballot.

Voting centers also have accessible voting systems and language access options.

Many states offer early voting – days before Election Day when you can go in person and vote. To find out if your state has early voting (and what days that will be), check with your local election officials.

- If your state says that you must show an ID, be sure to bring it with you.
- If you can, go when the voting center will not be as busy, usually mid-morning or early-afternoon. Early voting is usually less crowded than voting on Election Day.

How voting by mail works

Voting by mail is a healthy option because you vote at home. You get a ballot in the mail, fill it out, sign and seal the ballot envelope, and return it through the mail or at a secure drop box.

- Some states require other people to sign your ballot envelope as a witness.
- Some states require a copy of your driver's license or Social Security number.
- You may be able to use your phone to take a photo of your ID.

Make sure your ballot counts! Remember...

- Be sure to sign the declaration on the return envelope.
- Seal inner and outer envelopes.
- Closely follow all instructions to ensure your ballot is counted.
- Put enough postage on the envelope.

Accessible voting

All in-person voting centers must have at least one accessible voting system.

- If you need assistance voting, you can ask an election worker or you can bring someone with you to help.
- If you can, go when the voting center will not be as busy, usually mid-morning or early-afternoon.
- Use curbside or drive-through voting if available.
- You can bring your own headphones to use with the accessible system.

Check with your local elections office for other accessible voting options.
